USE OF LARGER IMPLEMENTS AND MORE HORSES HELP TO SOLVE LABOR PROBLEM

uples of Methods Which Save Man Power-One Man Operating Tractor Drawing Three Plows and Another With a Four-Mule Team Operating

 It two men, driving one horse each, can combine the two horses into one team which one man can drive, and this team can do as much or more work than two did singly, isn't it wise to combine them and save one

And if the farm is large and onditions warrant, isn't it wise to combine two of these twohorse teams into one, and save another man's time?

Work which is generally done in me parts of the country with the aid of machines that greatly increase the efficiency of the men employed is still largely done by hand in other parts. Machinery for most of the work in connection with preparing and filling the soil is available in many sizes, and frequently two or more outfits, each requiring the time of one man, are seen working in the same field on operations for which implements of two or three times the size of those used could be employed with just as satisfactory results. There are few farm horses which a driver of ordinary intelligence cannot train to work in large teams in a few days' time, and most of the larger implements are lit-tle if any more complicated or difficult to handle than the small ones for the same work.

Installation of Machinery.

Where the farm is large, and it is not possible to procure sufficient labor, it will certainly be more profitable, as farm machinery.

plant, cultivate and harvest a full acre age of the crops best suited to his land and the needs of the country, than to let some of the land He idle or, at best have it prepared and worked poorly, and the crops out of season. In many cases, a worker can double the work done by the use of a larger implement and a correspondingly greater amount of motive power, and sometimes the gain is considerably more than this. If the nature of the work and the machinery for doing it are such that the best implements will increase the efficiency of the worker by only 50 or even 25 per cent, their use may make possible an increase in acreage by just that amount, and at work in less time and allow him to take advantage of good weather if the

Buy Larger Machinery. Can all farmers afford to buy extra horses and larger implements to man labor? Of course, those whose caster, Kentucky. farms require but one or two horses to do the ordinary work can seldom af-ford to do so. But such can secure this additional help by combining to purchase larger machinery, and doub-ling up their teams to operate it; or usually more skilled in operating machinery, or better able to purchase it, may own the larger implements, Long. and do the work for several neighbor farmers, besides his own, to the ad-vantage of all concerned. TO CONTROL WEEDS

(Prepared by the United States De-partment of Agriculture.) One of the best and cheapest ways to control weeds on farms is to keep a flock of sheep. In addition to controlling weeds without cost, sheep will render a profit by producing nutritious food and wool, and will assist materially in meeting demands on the nation for meat and wool production. If weeds are not permitted to grow and develop leaves they will die, but it would require a great amount of hard labor to keep most weeds under control by this method. Sheep will keep the down weeds down and the more weeds they eat the less will be their cost of upkeep, and the greater will be the supply of Many rough or permanent grass pastures that require mowing can be kept clean by the use of sheep, while at the same time

HOW TO SHIP NEW POTATOES NEED OF ANCIENT PRACTICE

Prevent Losses by Loading Them Care fully Into Cars-Double-Barrel Is Good. -Double-Headed

(Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture.)

Shifting of the loads in transit, weak and partly filled packages, and lack of ventilation are responsible for losses in many cars of new potatoes which are arriving at markets. The loading of diseased potatoes is also responsible for considerable loss. In some cases shipments that show scab wilt or late blight are practically worthless when they reach the market.

The double-headed barrel appears to be the best package for new potatoes that is now in general use. If properly made it protects the potatoes as well as holds them in place. Much less breakage has been found in cars where the barrels are loaded on end than when loaded on their bilge. Strips should be placed on top of the lower layers of barrels for the upper layers a safe practice unless headliners (strips to prevent heads bulging) are used. It is said that the use of head-liners would prevent nine-tenths of the preakers in all tweeters in all tweeters in all tweeters in all tweeters. Loading barrels on their bilge is not breakage in all types of loads with price.

barrels. Extra bracing is needed when barrels are loaded on their bilge.

The sack is not a suitable container for tender new potatoes; it offers no protection from bruising, and when loaded is hard to ventilate. If sacks are to be used they should be of no greater capacity than 100 pounds. The smaller sack could be handled with much greater care and would lend itself to yentilation better.

Hampers are not sultable packages for potatoes. They do not have the necessary strength for the weight of their contents and offer little protection. As long as hampers are used for potatoes and other heavy produce there will be severe loss from breakage. If used they should be loaded on end and alternate baskets inverted. Great care should be taken to make the load tight, and no slack space should be alle in the car. This will lessen the chance of shifting. Crates of various sorts are being used, and appear satisfactory where the strength of the crate is sufficient crates should not be used under any circumstances, and crates with wide openings tend to wilt the potatoes while in transit. Crates must be load ed tight and firm, and no slack space left under any circumstances without suitable bracing, while striping is recommended.

History Tells Us That Roman Farmers Stored Various Succulent Feeds for Live Stock.

(Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture.)

History tells of Roman farmers who carefully chopped fine various green. succulent feeds and packed them in pits for use during the winter season The practice seems to have been com-mon and the feed kept well. From these early times it has been good practice to store various green crops in pits or airtight containers for feed-ing to stock. The silo is the presentday result, and a farmer who raises live stock cannot afford to be without one. The advantages of the silo are numerous, but some of the more important are: 1. Green, succulent feed is available throughout the year.

A silo stores more feed for less cost than any other farm building.
 The feed is handy for use.

One of the best methods of curing hay is to cure in the cock. This method not generally practiced except in regions where unfavorable weather is the rule rather than the exception, or when the best quality of legume hay is desired. Throughout the middle West, where hay loaders are used, hay is not cocked because of the extra labor required and the inability to handle cocked hay with the hay loader.

It has been shown that it is necessary to get rid of the water in the plant evenly. On a sunshing day hay must be raked after it has been in the swath a certain length of time, or the leaves will become dried out and loss color. When it is raked into the windrow a smaller proportion of the hay is exposed to the action of the sun's rays. After remaining in the windrow, where further curing done, the time is reached when it b comes necessary to remove the hay be

The hay in the cock continues to lose its moisture slowly until it is cured out sufficiently to be baled or put into the stack or barn. The time required for curing will depend upon the moisture content when cocked, the amount of hay put into the cock, and also upon weather conditions.

Under ordinary conditions hay will cure in the cock in from three days to a week. Hay cocked too "green" will cause heating. How to Cock Hay.

There are two ways to make a hay ock. One is to roll up the hay in the windrow into a rather loose cock or bunch, or to round up (cock) bunches sulky or push rake, after the hay is almost cured. The bulk of the hay in this kind of a cock is not handled, being left rolled up and tangled from the action of the rake. The edges are pulled out with a pitchfork and put on top of the cock. Such cocks are subject to considerable settling, and flatten out and do not shed rain. This practice is suitable for curing in good weather, as a man can handle more than twice as much shay as when cocking the other way. It is a waste of time, however, to cock hay in this manner if it is to be exposed to rain unless hay caps are used; for the rain will wet and spoil the hay.

D. W. Griffith Talks Of His War Experiences.

David Wark Griffith, the foremost director of moving pictures is back fresh from the seat of war in order to watch his latest achievement, "Hearts of the World." The public have responded so enthus assically that Mr. Griffith feels that the enormous expenditure of money and the risk of his own life was well worthy of this triumph. In fact the most conservative reviewers have all agreed that Mr. Griffith has in reality outdone all previous achievements in producing "Hearts of the World."

Much has already been printed about the aid given Mr. Griffith by the British and French war officers, and also by David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister of England, in staging this romance of the great war. In fact, one scene of the film shows David Lleyd George shaking hands with Mr. Griffith and wishing God Speed, just as he departed for the battle fields of France.

"I spent several weeks in London before going to France," said Mr. Criffith recently. Through inference with Mr. Lloyd George, to whom the object of the drama had already been explained. I wanted to stage a great love romance with the war as a back ground and with the aspiring motive of love of country as the ideal. It was suggested by certain prominent officials of the British and French Governments that a story staged on the actual battle fields of France could not fail to arouse tremendous enthusiasm throughout the civilized world, and in return for the aid and assistance rendered me I voluntarily made an greement by which a large share of this achievement will go to aid of the wounded soldiers of the Allies.

FEWER HOGS DIE OF DISEASE

Annual Death Rate for Year Ending March, 1918, Reaches Lowest Mark in 35 Years.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The death rate of swine from all diseases for the year ending March, 1918, was 42.1 per 1,000, and is the lowest in 35 years, according to records kept during that period. This unprecedentedly low rate of mortality presents a great contrast with those of earlier periods, particularly with the losses of 133.8 per 1,000 in 1887, 144 per 1,000 in 1897, and 118.9 per 1,000 in 1914, years marked by severe outbreaks of hog cholera. This is even, a remarkable reduction from the nor mal low rate of losses which has re-mained slightly above 50 per 1,000 when the disease was least prevalent. The approximate number of hogs on hand January 1, 1918, was 71,374,000. The loss of 42.1 per 1,000 for the year ending March, 1918, therefore represented approximately 3,000,000 of these animals, equivalent to the consumption of pork and pork products by the tire population of the United States for 1917 for 25 days.

These recent losses should be compured-with that of 7,000,000 begs in 1914, which curtailed production to the extent of the national consumption for that year for 37 days.

The marked reduction in the losses of swine in 1918 over preceding periods, in view of the fact that 50 per ent of these losses are due to hog cholera, indicates clearly the benefit from the combined efforts of state and federal agencies in protecting the farmers against the rayages of this exceedingly fatal disease.

Care Given at Farrowing Time Has Important Bearing on Food Sup-ply of Nation.

The farrowing house or pen should be comfortably warm, well ventilated, and well lighted. Above all else, it should be well bedded. Do not allow any circulation of air under the floor. Too many hog growers make the mistake of bedding too lightly. Heavy bedding naturally makes the sow con fortable and warm—conditions neces-sary if she is to be quiet. Use wheat or rye straw. Wild hay is good, as is-millet. Do not use oat straw unless there is absolutely nothing else at doing so. Reduce the heavy feed to that length of time.

Under so circumstances should the

When the pigs are from four or five to ten days old, be on the lookout for thumps. The best-looking fat little pig is the one to go first every time. An almost certain indication is a little roll of fat around the neck While roll of fat around the neck. While there is no known cure for thumps, the trouble is quite easily prevented. Plenty of exercise for the pigs is the answer. In cold, stormy weather outof-door exercise is impossible, but if a central farrowing house with an alley-way, is used, get the little fat fellows into the alley and put in about ten or fifteen minutes three or four times a day chasing them with a buggy whip, until they are pretty well tired out. If this is impossible, try one or two of the little pigs at a time in a large barrel or hogshead, placed by the farrow-ing pen. The pigs will hear the old ing pen. The pigs will near the sow making a fuss and in running sow making a fuss and in running for a corner around the barrel hunting for a corner around the barrells will take the exto climb out, generally will take the exercise necessary to ward off thumps. A considerable part of the battle is won if the litter gets past the first ten days or so with a good start.

STEADIER HOG MARKETS PLANNED

Hog Producers and Packers Confer With Representatives of the Food Administration and Agricultural Department and Adopt New Plan of Regulation.

In accordance with the policy of the Food Administration since its foundstion to consult representative men in the agricultural industry on occasions of importance to special branches of the industry, on October 24 there was convened in Washington a meeting of the Live Stock Subcommittee of the Agricultural Advisory Board and the special members representing the swine industry to consider the situation in the hog market.

The conference lasted for three days, and during this time met with the executive committee of the fifty packing firms participating in foreign orders for pork products and with the members of the Food Administration directing foreign pork purchases.

The conclusions of the conference were as follows

The entire marketing situation has producer and the insurance of an ade so changed since the September joint quate future supply. conference as to necessitate an entire alteration in the plans of price stabi-lization. The current peace talk has alterated the helders of corn, and there alarmed the holders of corn, and there has been a price decline of from 25 Committee, representing the 45 to 50 cents to 40 cents per bushel. On the other hand, the arrival of hogs during the last three weeks in the seven great markets has been 27 per cent, more than last year, during the corresponding period, demonstrating the unusually heavy marketing of the the unusually heavy marketing of the available supply. In the face of the excessive receipts some packers have hogs based upon the proportionate inexcessive receipts some packers have not maintained the price agreed last month. The exports of 130,000,000 pounds of pork products for October compared with about 52,00,000 pounds in October a year ago, and the export orders placeable by the Food Administration for November, amount to 170,000,000 pounds as contrast-ed with the lesser exports of 98,000,000 for November, 1917. It seems probable that the present prospective supplies would be inadequate to meet this world demand with the return to peace. So far as it is possible to interpret this fact, it appears that there should be even a pears that there should be even a stronger demand for pork products after the war, and therefore any alarm of hog producers as to the effect of peace is unwarranted by the outlook.

Lone Village Lonesome.

is the not inappropriate name of a village in England that has only a single inhabitant. The lone villager of Skiddaw complains because he cannot vote—there being no overseer to prepare the voters' list and no-church or public building on which to "publish" one, as the law requires.

The bone on which the roof of the rattle rests consists of the last caudal vertebra and is covered with a skin which is the beginning of the rat tle in young rattlesnakes.

New York's Systematic Growth.

A remarkable forecast of population of New York is brought to light in copies of the Scientific American for the manual of the common council shows the population of the city to increase until 1905 would have made the population of New York 5,257.493, a figure almost in accord with the census of that time.

One of the oddest crafts ever seen near Provincetown, Mass., was the Es-kimo kayak, in which Explorer Donald B. MacMillan paddled about. The kayak is a man's canoe and is built on a frame on which is stretched skin, water tight. It is handled with a double paddle, is decked over, and, with an expert in it, is one of the safest small craft known.

Kentucky Crop Report As Of November 1st. 1918.

The issuance of the November crop report is delayed a few days purposely so that the farmer's estimates on yields can be made as final on corn, and tobacco, neither of which crops is entirely housed.

The fall has been most seasonable The drouth was broken and there has een sufficient rainfall to start the fall sown grains. Pastures the consequently also in good condition and the prospects for wheat crop for 1919 are most excellent. The area of wheat sown is increased and shows at 114 per cent, which means an in crease over last year's acreage of 12 per cent. Condition of same is giv en at 97 per cent. Wheat seeding is still in progress in some localities. In many localities more rye is being sown, acreage for the State being given at 95 per cent. and conditions of same at 95 per cent., which shows a much better prospect for this crop as compared with 1917. Barley acreage is 89 per cent and conditio is given at 95 per cent. The fall grain crops are in good condition and the outlook is most favorable both as to acreage and condition.
Corn crop is light. The drouth this year injured the corn crop very materially. Some of the late corn is coming out better than it was expected. The yield as a State average is 25 bushels per acre, which is bushels per acre less than last year's average. This would indicate a yield of something like 97,500,000 bushels for the entire State. Corn husking is still in progress.

The average estimate on Burley tobacco gives a yield of 833 pound per acre while Dark tobacco has an estimated yield of 855 pounds per acre. This is lighter in both instances than last year, but of good quel

A very light crop of potatoes ported. The early crop was poor but the late crop is much better. The yield as a State average is estimated at 71 bushels per acre, and sweet notatoes at 96 bushels per acre.

Pastures have improved and show a condition of 92 per cent. All class es of live stock are in good condition and the number on hand as compared with an average year shows as fol-

Cattle, No. on hand 91 per cent condition 94 per cent.

Hogs, No. on hand 91 per cent; condition 94 per cent.

Sheep, No. on hand, 89 per cent; condition 91 per cent.

Taken as a whole the report this month indicates that the average yields have been cut down, which is largely attributable to the drouth, but the fall has been favorable for sowing the grain crops and housing of corn and tobacco and considering the extreme shortage of labor, farm work is only in fairly good shape for

Henry County Farm

On Wednesday, Nov. 27, '18

BEGINNING AT 1:30 O'CLOCK P. M.

I will sell on the premises, located about one mile from Sulphur, Henry County, Kentucky, on the L.& N. Rail Road, my farm known as the Foote place and containing 144 acres and 139 poles of very fertile land, well watered and under good fence.

125 Acres of this Land is now in Blue Grass of Long Standing--Mostly Virgin Soil.

This place will be sold in two tracts and then as a whole, the way bringing the most money will be chosen.

TRACT NO. 1.—Contains about 42 acres of good fertile land, unimproved.

TRACT NO. 2. Has about 103 acres, is the home place, and on it is a good residence of six rooms, three porches and pantry, good cistern at porch, underground dairy and other outbuild-Stock barn with stanchions for nine head of cows and room for as many more with room for feed to winter them. Good crib near barn, eight acre tobacco barn and new stripping room.

This is an excellent farm, gently rolling and very fertile. NO WASTE LAND.

Will Grow Hemp, Tobacco, Carn, Wheat OR ANY OTHER CROP GROWN IN KENTUCKY.

This place must be seen to be appreciated. Is in a high state of cultivation and ready for purchaser to get a big income from his land. Would make an ideal dairy farm.

This home is in a good neighborhood, near churches and school, being about one mile from a good shipping point where stock, crops and product from the farm can be easily marketed at New Hampshire, five from Massachu-Louisville or Cincinnati, since location is on line between above named cities.

TERMS: One third cash, balance in one and two years with six per cent on deferred payments with lien on land. Approve bond on day of sale will be required of purchaser.

Why Compare Beef and Coal Profits?

Swift & Company has frequently stated that its profit on beef averages only onefourth of a cent a pound, and hence has practically no effect on the price.

Comparison has been made by the Federal Trade Commission of this profit with the profit on coal, and it has pointed out that anthracite coal operators are content with a profit of 25 cents a ton, whereas the beef profit of one-fourth of a cent a pound means a profit of $5.00 a ton.

The comparison does not point out that anthracite coal at the seaboard is worth at wholesale about $7.00 a ton, whereas a ton of beef of fair quality is worth about $400.00 wholesale.

To carry the comparison further, the 25 cent profit on coal is $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the \$7.00 value.

The $5.00 profit on beef is only 11/4 per cent of the $400.00 value.

The profit has little effect on price in either case, but has less effect on the price of beef than on the price of coal.

Coal may be stored in the open air indefinitely; beef must be kept in expensive coolers because it is highly perishable and most be refrigerated.

Coalis handled by the carload or ton; beef is delivered to retailers by the pound or hundred weight.

Methods of handling are vastly different. Coal is handled in open cars; beef must be shipped in refrigerator cars at an even temperature.

Fairness to the public, fairness to Swift & Company, fairness to the packing industry, demands that these indisputable facts be considered. It is impossible to disprove Swift & Company's statement, that its profits on beef are so small as to have practically no effect on prices.

Systematic Effort Wins.

If we take our days and reduce them to the essentists we shall find that there are many real things to do, needful things to do, and we shall go about these tasks quietly and carnestly, not expressing our energies through a hun-dred trifles, but through true effort, properly directed, doing whatever our hands and hearts and minds find to do, nobly and well.

A WALLED CITY OF WOMEN

A little sunny village has grown up saside a high wall in France within the hast year. Its square flat houses stand in straight even rows and along one side of the city wall is a long dormitory for single women. There are many more of them than of the famines in the drab little houses. The village is full of women-old, young, middleaged-whose faces, hands and he't stowly are turning yellow from the affect their lungs. But most of them are refugees and the fact that they are giving up their good looks, their beaith, and perhaps their lives in the munition factory, is of little moment to them. They have come into the walled town from ruined villeges and devastated farms with their frightened little children, their despairing old people, carrying all their earthly possessions in tiny bundles. In their individual gves there is no future; in all their world there is no interest but the conquest of the flun.

No one comes into this little war community that centers around the big new munitions plant but those who work. Because of the danger and the blighting yellow powder, the work is bighly paid and all the workers are

DEHORNING CATTLE IS BEST

Operation Should Be Performed Early Enough to Permit Wounds to Heal Before Fattening.

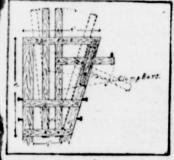

Prepared by the United States Depart ment of Agriculture.) Cattle intended for the feed lots this winter should be dehorned es enough to permit the wounds to before they are put on full feed. De orning offers advantages tle are more easily and solely handled when deborned, and each animal is assured of fair play at the feed trough Dehorning also prevents the braiset condition of the flesh and tern hides caused by goring both in the feed lots and in transit to market, as well as excessive shrinkage in shipments. De-horning should be done in late fall or early winter.

The most common method of dehorning cattle is to saw the horns off, and for this purpose an ordinary meat saw can be used, though there are saws on the market that are specially designed for the operation. By this method a good clean job can be done on any type of horn, and the wound is left in a condition to heal readily.

The use of deborning clippers is be more common. e dehorned and where they are desorned before the horn becomes hard and brittle. The chief objection to de-borning with the elippers is that thin or hard horns are sometimes crushed or splintered, resulting in a wound that heals slowly. This objection is partly overcome by using clippers that are constructed with two V-shaped which, when pressed together, bring four cutting edges against the horn, lessening the tendency to crush or splinter the horn.

A number of methods of restraining in this locality so far.

numals during the deborning operation have been practiced. Where only a few head are to be dehorned, the guickest way is to throw the animal Mr. Taylor Professor hought from Mr. e ground and held it or the it se- D. M. Montgomery of Bryantsville a until the horn is taken off.

This forces one horn forward so as to make it easily removed. After one horn is removed the head should be snubbed to the other side for the removal of the other horn. A chute of this kind can be constructed at very low cost by using scrap material about the farm. Cattle should never be dehorned during warm weather when there is dan-ger of the wound becoming infested with screw worms. The best time to dehorn is in late fall and early winter or during the cool weather of spring.

If the weather is sufficiently cool there is very little danger of the wound becoming infested with screw worms. However, it is best to apply some fly repellent, such as pine tar or one of the coal-tar products to the wound

The accompanying plans show the construction of two types of simple and satisfactory dehorning chutes. The dotted lines in both types of chute show the head clamps when open, and show the head clamps when open, and the lever in both cases is used for closing the head clamps after the ani-mal's head is in position. The sides that are shown in the plans can be used for either type. The gate is con-venient for letting the animal out of the chute and also for branding and

THE VISION GIRL

By MILDRED WHITE.

The day had started gloomily for Alan, but that was before the dream began. He had gone in his runabout, to make the usual pretense of medical visits, for Alan's well-equipped office, showed as yet no mark of usage.

Upon this particular morning of the disastrous auto ride, he was wondering: "How he was going to get his rent money together." When, at the knottlest point of his problem, the car was held in a deep rut of the country road, then without further warn ng, turned turtle, leaving Alan face pward on a mossy bank.

the next development was his wonderful dream! With a realizing con-sciousness of pain, he endeavored to urn his bandaged head and discovered hat he was lying in a great curtain draped bed of a fashion of a century ago. Through the golden brocade of the draperies, Alan saw the room of princely appointment, chandeliers and wainscoting reminding him of stage scenery of an historic play.

young doctor wrinkled his brows in perplexity, then smiled. It was all an illusion of course.

When he tried to stir the pain was ntense, so he contented himself with reaching over the satin coverlet to touch something tangible. Inadver-tently his finger pressed a button on the mahogany, and around the canopy the accident, he decided which caused him to see these strange things, but bed of a hospital.

But now as the dream continued, resting comfortably in his gold-draped bed, he saw before him a panel of the wainscoting slide aside, while In its opening appeared a beautiful radiant creature—a girl who seemed to be from that same past period of the

At her touch the electricity was turned off. Alan did not answer. Of what use to talk to a vision?

The girl sighed, as she turned from him, another moment and she had passed through the panel in the wall. Restlessly he endeavored to raise himself as an elderly woman entered the

"Tell me," Alan asked painfully, "where I am."

"You are carefully housed in the old Judge Weller estate," the doctor replied.

"Then it was not all an illusion?" Alan eagerly questioned. He smiled. "I fancied that a lady in trailing brocade came walking through the wall.' The physician laughed. "You'll have no more such fancies, I he said. widow died recently, and the only ones at present in charge are family servants. They await the settling of Light came suddenly to Alan. This was the granddaughter, of course, re-turned unexpectedly from abroad. Alan's mending was slower than the doctor had hoped, and Alan was glad.

Days of enchantment like those spent upon the balcony came but once in a lifetime; his hostess was kind. The olden time frocks had given place to those of newer and simpler fashion.

Back to Alan's heart came the gloom of that first disastrous morning. Love had found him, and he must go away with it buried in his bosom. A penniless physician may not ask the hand and heart of an heiress. "Tell me," he asked, "how you came to me dressed in brocades, through a panel in the wall?"

The girl laughed. "The panel is merely a door," she said. "Old Mrs. Weller left her rings and gowns to me. I happened to be trying them on as that time to see if they could be made over. I was her companion, you know, and am keeping charge here until the heiress arrives."

Alan leaned toward the girl of his vision. His face was radiant, for the gloom of his morning had vanished (Copyright, 1918, Western News

By MISS STELLA L. COLE.

"Dear me!" lamented Virginia Paget, "it seems as if everything I plan lately comes out just the other way from what I want it to. I don't believe that I have planned a thing in the last month but what just the opposhe thing has happened."

"So?" queried her brother Jim, looking up from his book

"Yes, so!" she replied. "Now, for a severe headache I had to stay at home. Sunday night I wanted to call I put on a comfortable dress and presome one special calls; but if I dress pleasant company, I am doomed to spend the entire evening alone," Silence a moment, then Jim's book struck the table and his feet hit the everything you plan comes out the opposite way?"

"Yes, that's just what I mean," she solution is easy. Just plan things op-posite from the way you want them

Virginia's face was still gloomy. "Well, according to my numerous ex-periences that rule would be successful," she said.

"Say, I'll tell you what," said Jim. "Try it for a week and see what hap-pens. If the experiment is a success, all well and good. If it isn't, you have nothing to lose. Now, will you do it?" "I will try your remedy for a week, If it works out, I shall be made hapgoing to happen, you know. Now, for tastance, what about tonight?"

"Tonight? Well, tonight 7 guess I will put on an old dress, get buried in an interesting book—"
"Which means that you want some one you care for to call on you?"

"And you would be willing to have some one you care for call on you, then, when you have an old dress on?" "Certainly not, stupid! I shall have another dress where I can get tuto ft

"Ah!" excisined Jim. "I feared so. Cheated every night, I suppose. How can you expect the experiment to work out unless you are fair about M? Never mind that other dress tonight, but do just as if you really expected to spend the evening alone. Now will you?" A moment's hesitation, then Vir-ginia's decision was made, "Yes," she

A young woman with untidy hair, solled dress and shabby shoes, sat in the parlor reading when suddenly the bell gave a sharp ring. Resisting an impulse to flee Virginia turned to the door. "Perhaps it is Kate Briggs," she thought consolingly.

At the door stood a khaki-clad figure upon whose shoulder strap was the lieutenant's bar, and across whose face was a broad smile, "Good eve-ning, Virginia," he said. "I am home for a few days, and thought I would call on you.

Virginia's rassment. Robert Thomas! The man of the whole world who held the high est place in her heart. That he, of all men, should see her thus. But with a supreme effort she gained her self-con trol, and smiled as she extended her hand. "Why, Robert, I am so glad to see you!" she said. "Come right in!"

No one would have guessed the efas she engaged her caller in an animated conversation. But her heart sank as he rose. Surely there was no hope for her after this. She had tried the experiment fairly. It had worked out to the letter, but by so doing she had lost the thing dearest to her in the whole world.

Then the soldier turned, and took her hands in his. "Virginia," he said, "please forgive me if I have seemed to be unkind. Jim told me about the ex-periment you were making and so I de-cided that I, too, would make an experiment. I have cared for you a long time, dear, but I wanted to be sure that you possessed those qualities which are necessary to a soldier's wife. I am now more than satisfied on that point for you have proven your gameness by seeing this evening through without a quiver, when you must have been suffering agonies. You have also proven your trustworthiness. and also your sense of humor, by keep-ing your word to your brother when inwardly you rebelled against it. I expect to go across soon. May I take with me your promise to be my wife?"

Virginia lifted a happy face to his.
"Yes," she whispered, "but oh, please excuse me a minute now, while I get on some different clothes."
